Columbus Mayor Mike Coleman Announces Support for Chandra; Says Executive Experience Matters for Running the People's Law Firm

Cleveland, Ohio – Columbus Mayor Mike Coleman announced today that he is supporting Subodh Chandra in the Democratic Primary for Ohio Attorney General. The endorsement is yet another in the long list of Mayors who recognize the value of Chandra's executive-leadership experience.

"Subodh's experience leading the Cleveland Law Department and his grasp of the issues that confront Ohio's next attorney general make him the best choice for Democratic voters in Tuesday's Primary Election," Mayor Coleman said. "Executive experience matters, and will be important to effectively run the People's Law Firm for all Ohioans."

Chandra said that "it is particularly gratifying to have Mayor Coleman's endorsement because he is a chief executive in the nation's 15th largest city who knows how to get things done including effective crime fighting. He was also one of the best regarded assistant attorneys general and knows what it takes to properly serve the attorney general's true clients—the people of Ohio."

Mayor Coleman is the ninth Mayor to endorse Chandra's candidacy. Others include Mayor Frank Jackson, City of Cleveland; Former Mayor Jane Campbell, City of Cleveland; Mayor Rhine McLin, City of Dayton; Mayor Eric Brewer, City of East Cleveland; Mayor Daniel F. Ross, City of Bucyrus; Mayor David Berger, City of Lima; Mayor Thomas O'Grady, City of North Olmsted; Mayor Georgine Welo, City of South Euclid; and Mayor Bruce Bain, City of Newark.
